Vacancy

Media and Communications Executive

Cricket Scotland currently has a fantastic opportunity for a driven, creative and dynamic candidate looking for their next career move into an exciting role within one of Scotland's most progressive sports governing bodies.

Following one of the most successful seasons in the country's rich cricket history, we are looking for someone to drive forward our communications and media strategy, working across the entire spectrum of cricket operations. This will involve working with multiple stakeholders within Cricket Scotland and externally covering traditional and digital media, website, branding, communications and marketing.

Cricket is thriving in Scotland with multiple formats of the game being played within schools, villages and clubs throughout the country. Our national men's and women's sides are now at their highest ever ICC ranking and we are on course to be the next country to be awarded full ICC membership.

This role will require a candidate with a creative side to bring digital campaigns to life whilst also possessing strong organisational skills to ensure deadlines are met and content delivered to our stakeholders, supporters and journalists. Exceptional relationship building and influencing skills will be required to engage with the cricketing community, the national sporting and mainstream media and the international cricketing world.

Due to the nature of the business, a flexible approach to working hours and the 37.5 hour contracted working week is to be expected. This may include periods of time outside of Scotland and outside of the UK travelling with our international teams to global ICC cricketing events.

To apply for this role, please send us your CV, salary expectations and covering letter detailing what part you will play in inspiring Scotland to choose cricket:
